

Spitfire flies faster-

Hurting to the defence of Britain at upwards of 350 miles an hour, the Supermarine "Spitfire" is indeed a formidable enemy to encounter. Her manoeuvrability at incredible speeds is amazing; she carries ample armament; her tanks give surprising range. Her design and construction presented many new problems—for obviously every gramme counts, yet strength—far from being sacrificed—is more important than ever. We are pleased to have helped in some measure towards the remarkable success of the Supermarine Company in this machine—for we are proud that no metal which is lighter than "Hiduminium" is as strong, that none which is stronger is as light.
